

IT'S TIME FOR ACTION

Every day in Australia, 46 people receiving mental healthcare die prematurely from preventable physical illnesses, an average 11 years earlier compared with the general population.

Equally Well is writing to all Ministers and Shadow Ministers of the Federal, State and Territory Governments who oversee mental health in their portfolios, calling on them to take action and address this as a human rights issue and provide equal access to the health system for all.

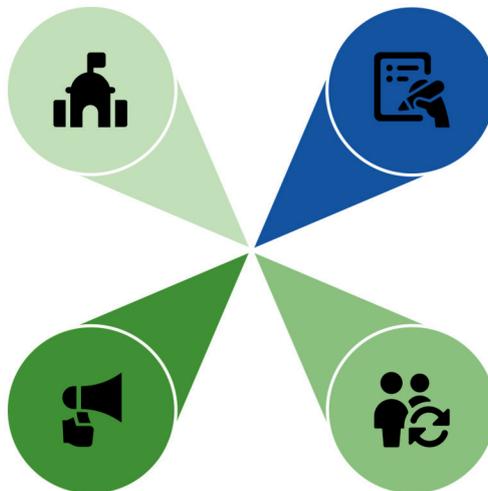

Please, stand with us for equal access to health services without discrimination, and add your name to the list of signatures to be attached to each ministerial letter.

Actions for government

Ensure legal compliance and enhance research for health equity.

Actions for advocacy bodies

Coordinate training and promote human rights approaches.

Actions for individuals

Encourage personal advocacy through signing the Equally Well "Call to Action" ministerial letters.

Actions for service providers

Improve service quality through education and integration of lived experience.

Read the Call to Action

Add your name

